

Calvin Byler file

April, 1921

THE ARCHITECTURAL RECORD.

67

An Historic Home

The Blaisdell Home at Belfast, Maine, is one of New England's architectural landmarks.

This house is reported to have been built according to one of three designs submitted to George Washington. Upon his rejection of them, the plans were sold to a retired sea captain, who erected the building.

The Blaisdell home is heated by a Mills Boiler and Princess radiators.

---

The H.B. SMITH Co.,
Boilers and Radiators

New York Boston Philadelphia Westfield, Mass.

---

